The University of Vermont
and
State Agricultural College

May 20, 2012

Universitas V. Montis

Tune: Jane Oppenlander

Text: David Cox

From the lofty peaks of Mansfield
to the shores of Lake Champlain,
comes a mighty swelling chorus,
whose echo will remain:

Chorus

Vermont! Vermont! Vermont!
Our University!
Thy loyal sons and daughters
sing in love and praise to Thee!

Repeat Chorus

Shadows falling 'cross the campus,
changing seasons' wond'rous scene,
stir our thoughts of Alma Mater,
and her colors Gold and Green:

Chorus

Vermont! Vermont! Vermont!
Our University!
Thy loyal sons and daughters
sing in love and praise to Thee!

Repeat Chorus

Gaudeamus igitur

Traditional University Song

Second Verse by Z. Philip Ambrose, Professor of Classical Languages Emeritus

Gaudeamus igitur, iuvenes dum sumus.
Post iucundam iuventutem, post molestam senectutem
Nos habebit humus.

Vivat nunc Mons Viridis, sicut tunc Romani!
Vivat lingua Caesaris! vivat illa Socratis!
Viridimontani!

*So let's rejoice while we are young;
After pleasant youth, after troublesome old age, the ground will have us.*

*Let Vermont now live, as the Romans back then!
Let Caesar's language live, let that of Socrates live, Vermonters!*

The University of Vermont

Dear Graduates, Families, Friends, and Colleagues:

My sincere welcome to all as we gather today to celebrate the achievements of the Class of 2012.

A university is a place of many communities. We are, of course, the broad communities of individuals who define this institution on a daily basis—students, faculty, and staff. And we are also the smaller communities found on a residence hall floor, among an athletic team, within a jazz ensemble, in the classroom for a section of English 001, and so many other places.

But, over and above all of these, we are the University of Vermont—a community not limited by the borders of our campus or by the years you have spent here earning your degree. Today marks the 209th time the UVM community has gathered for a commencement ceremony. Our graduates are part of a rich history that stretches back nearly to the founding of this nation. They are now part of an alumni family making a difference in communities here in Vermont, throughout the United States, and halfway around the world.

Congratulations, graduates and families. Job well done.

SPEAKER AND DEGREES HONORIS CAUSA

Cyma Zarghami

Doctor of Letters

Commencement Speaker

After leaving the University of Vermont, alumna Cyma Zarghami took a position at Nickelodeon in 1985, a then start-up children's television network. Beginning at an entry-level position, Zarghami gradually rose through the company ranks. She was named president in 2006 and now oversees all creative and business operations for Viacom's Nickelodeon Group, which has been the number one cable television network in the United States for 17 straight years, and has expanded to serve more than 350 million people in over 25 languages around the world.

Born in Iran and raised in New Jersey, Zarghami attended Dwight Englewood preparatory school in Englewood, NJ and came to UVM in 1980 to study education. Although she ultimately decided teaching was not a good fit for her and switched to a major in English, she says she was drawn to Nickelodeon in large part because of the young audience it was serving. Nickelodeon, whose early shows included "Pinwheel" and "You Can't Do That on Television," was meeting a need for children that other networks were not.

Through her rise at Nickelodeon, Zarghami occupied roles in scheduling and marketing before managing the network, and in 2006, becoming president of Nickelodeon. In that role, Zarghami has led a reinvention of the company's holdings, including re-launching Nick Jr. (previously Noggin) and Teen Nick (previously

The N). In a 2010 article about her work at Nickelodeon, the New York Times called her "one of the top executive women in the media industry." Under her leadership, Nickelodeon has achieved its 17th consecutive year as the number one network for children.

Although Zarghami left UVM just three credits shy of completing her English major, she returned to campus in 2000 to speak at the College of Education and Social Services' commencement ceremony, where she was also awarded a diploma. She lives in New York City with her husband and three sons.

Robert De Cormier

Doctor of Letters

As a young man in New York City recovering from wounds sustained in Germany during World War II, Robert De Cormier was torn between a career in music or the labor movement. Fittingly, his passion for music and commitment to social justice became the two brightest threads woven into the fabric of his life's work.

A gifted vocalist and musician from a young age, he enrolled in the Juilliard School of Music at a time when the social activism of postwar America was in its infancy. In the 1950s he met and performed with other young musicians who would become the legends of the American folk music movement, including Pete Seeger, Huddie "Lead Belly" Ledbetter, Woody Guthrie, and Harry Belafonte, with whom he still collaborates artistically and in mutual support of civil and human rights.

He always viewed his music as "a way of uniting people, moving audiences with the music of great composers and using folk music to raise people's consciousness to the cause of social justice."

One of his students as a young music teacher after graduating from Juilliard was the late Mary Travers, who came to prominence with the folk trio Peter, Paul and Mary, a group with which he would form a long-time professional relationship as music director.

A conductor and prolific composer and arranger, De Cormier has experience with a wide range of musical genres including classical, Broadway and folk music. This, together with his eagerness to explore the music of other cultures, led to his selection as Music Director of the New York Choral Society in 1970, a position he held for seventeen years. During that time, the Society's Holiday Celebration with Peter, Paul and Mary became a popular holiday tradition and a successful PBS fundraiser across the country for many seasons. De Cormier remains New York Choral Society's music director emeritus.

A Vermont resident for more than four decades, De Cormier is the co-founder and director of the Vermont Symphony Orchestra Chorus, which has won unqualified praise from audiences and critics alike. He has also toured extensively as the founder and conductor of the Robert De Cormier Singers and the Vermont-based vocal ensemble Counterpoint.

Revered in the world of professional music for the range of his musical intellect and his use of music to lift the human spirit, he has served on the New York State Council on the Arts and the Choral Panel of the National Endowment for the Arts, and was presented the Governor's Award for Excellence in the Arts by the Vermont Arts Council. He has received two Lifetime Achievement Awards from New England Choral Arts and the New York Choral Society. In 2007 he was the recipient of an honorary Doctor of Arts degree from Middlebury College.

John William Hennessey, Jr.

Doctor of Laws

John William Hennessey, Jr., has been a national leader in higher education for more than four decades. Following thirty years of service to Dartmouth College as professor and dean of the Tuck Business School, Hennessey came to the University of Vermont in 1987 as UVM's first provost and later served as interim president.

Hennessey's rise in the higher education ranks started at Princeton where he graduated magna cum laude with election to Phi Beta Kappa in 1948, after serving as an Army officer in the Pacific theater during World War II. He earned his M.B.A., with distinction, from Harvard in 1950 and then his Ph.D. from the University of Washington, where he was an associate professor. He joined the faculty of Dartmouth College in 1957 as a teacher and scholar in organizational behavior and was named associate dean of the Tuck Business School five years later. In 1967, Hennessey was asked to serve as the sixth dean of Tuck. He accepted the offer, but on one condition: that the trustees approve the admission of women to the graduate business school. The first woman matriculated at Tuck the same year Hennessey became dean in 1968. Four years later, the Dartmouth trustees approved the admission of women at the undergraduate level.

During Hennessey's eight-year deanship, he and his colleagues strengthened the Tuck faculty and the M.B.A. curriculum, expanded the computer sophistication and international reach of the school, enhanced recruitment of minority students, and started the Tuck Executive Program, corporate support of faculty research, and the business school's alumni magazine. In 1976, Hennessey was named the first Charles Henry Jones Professor of Management and was awarded by the board of trustees one of five Third Century chairs, established at Dartmouth's bicentennial for innovation in teaching and interdisciplinary work, after which he taught business ethics and co-founded the Institute for the Study of Applied and Professional Ethics. He chaired the board of trustees of the Educational Testing Service (twice), served as president of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business, and was founding chairman of the Council for Opportunity in Graduate Management Education.

In 1987, Hennessey accepted an offer from UVM president Lattie Coor and the board of trustees, of which he was a member, to become the university's first provost, combining the academic vice president role with responsibility for the UVM budget. He held that position until Coor left for the presidency of Arizona State University in late 1989, when Hennessey was named interim president. He worked with the faculty and the university's many other stakeholders to embellish UVM's reputation as a "public Ivy," and he led the resetting of the relationship between the university and the city of Burlington in 1990.

Hennessey returned to Dartmouth a year later and helped found the Institute for Lifelong Education and served for a second time as chair of the board of Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center, of which he was one of the founding architects in the 1970s. He joined the inaugural board of Kendal at Hanover and chaired it from 1998 to 2001. He has been a trustee of the Medical Center Hospital of Vermont (now Fletcher Allen Healthcare); Vermont Law School, and Goddard College; and he has served as a director of the New Hampshire Community Loan Fund, Americans for Campaign Reform, and Patient Choices-Vermont, as well as the corporate boards of H. P. Hood, Inc.; Zayre Corporation (now TJX Companies, Inc.); and the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Hennessey is married to former Vermont governor Madeleine M. Kunin, currently a James Marsh Professor at UVM. His first wife, Jean L. Hennessey, the first executive director of the New Hampshire Charitable Foundation, died in 2004, survived by John and the couple's two children and three grandchildren.

Denise Shekerjian

Doctor of Letters

“Which came first: the restless mind or the writing life?” Denise Shekerjian of Charlotte, Vermont, asks on her blog, Soul of a Word. “For this writer anyway,” she tells her readers, “it was a mind like a swollen river that cascades with a ceaseless vengeance down a steep and rocky decline. It refused to settle down and behave already. And it remains ever so.” That restless mind has led Shekerjian on a quest to get inside the creative process—and to share her insights with others. She is the author of Uncommon Genius: How Great Ideas Are Born, a book based on interviews with 40 MacArthur Foundation fellows (winners of the “genius” prize). For that book, she spoke with accomplished people across the spectrum—including paleontologist Stephen Jay Gould, poet John Ashbery, and filmmaker John Sayles—looking for the common elements at the root of creativity, whatever the discipline.

According to a review in the New York Times, if some of the findings were predictable (don’t be afraid to take risks), others were less so, like the ability to have a good time. The book was championed early by Guy Kawasaki of Mac fame, which helped boost it into something of a cult classic in the field. Shekerjian’s intriguing exploration of what it takes to find and sustain the creative impulse caught the attention of a Huffington Post blogger, for example, who wrote about the book last year, more than 20 years after it was published.

Shekerjian came to writing as a second career and learned her art through trial and error. Her preoccupation with process is a theme that runs throughout her blog. After earning her bachelor’s degree in history from Middlebury College, she received a J.D. in law from Michigan State and a L.L.M. in criminal justice from New York University School of Law. Shekerjian pursued a career briefly in human rights and later as a trial attorney in Manhattan—criminal defense, federal court, high-profile cases. She drew upon these experiences for her book, Competent Counsel, a nonfiction account of working with lawyers. The law remains an abiding interest for her, but she prefers the writing life to the courthouse when it comes to telling the whole story.

In addition to commercial work undertaken early in her career, and later, her literary work, she started SoulofaWord.com in 2009, a place where she intimately explores the writing life, covering in her weekly entries topics spanning from the practical—how to write a query letter—to the personal and inspirational. “Looking for your beating heart?” Shekerjian asks readers in one post. “Seek the doing.”

The author of many essays and short stories, Shekerjian has twice been nominated for a Puschcart Prize. She has received a New Jersey State Council on the Arts Fellowship, a Graybar American History Prize and a Marshall Fellowship in Civil Liberties. Her first novel, The Color of Heaven, is currently under review. A new nonfiction work drawn from her blog is under development.

Ann Pesiri Swanson

Doctor of Laws

Field ecologist Ann Pesiri Swanson, UVM Class of 1979, has served as the executive director of the Chesapeake Bay Commission since 1988, and a member of the Board of Advisors for UVM’s Rubenstein School of Environment and Natural Resources since the mid-1990s.

Providing leadership to the commission, a legislative assembly representing Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, Swanson has received high praise for her innovative and astute efforts to protect the Chesapeake Bay, the largest and most productive estuary in the world—but one troubled by pollution and over-harvesting.

Widely known for her expertise on the 64,000-square mile bay and its tributaries, Swanson is a persuasive, orator, writer and negotiator. She is passionate about her work, having been involved in virtually every major piece of environmental legislation affecting Chesapeake Bay at the state and Federal levels for nearly three decades. She assisted in the creation of the interstate blue crab advisory committee, and helped draft and champion the important Chesapeake Bay Agreements that laid out the framework for watershed-wide ecosystem management. She also was central in the formation of the Chesapeake Bay Funder’s Network and has worked with federal, state and local officials and leaders to coordinate efforts to protect the Chesapeake Bay. Swanson received her bachelor’s degree in wildlife biology from UVM in 1979 and completed a master's of environmental studies at Yale in 1983. She has received many awards and accolades including the YWCA Twin Award in 2011, commendations from the Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania legislatures in 2008, UVM Alumni Achievement Award in 2007, an award from the Maryland chapter of the Sierra Club in 2004, and Conservationist of the Year from the Chesapeake Bay Foundation in 2001. She delivered the keynote presentation at the Stockholm Water Festival in 1997.

Overseeing one of the most complex restoration projects in U.S. history, Swanson has been guided by the best available science and a deep understanding of the interdependent communities of people and wildlife that live in and around the Chesapeake Bay.

Swanson served as Vermont's assistant state naturalist for two years after graduating from UVM and has continued to have a strong connection with the state and university. She was a founding member of the Rubenstein School's advisory board and served as its chair for nine years, working as a tireless advocate.

This year she will be meeting with Vermont and other regional officials and leaders working to protect Lake Champlain. Swanson will be sharing lessons she has learned from her work, in coordination with the Environmental Protection Agency, to help establish the Chesapeake Bay Total Maximum Daily Load agreement, a historic and comprehensive "pollution diet" to compel action to restore clean water to the Chesapeake Bay region.

Through this work, and many other efforts, Ann Perisi Swanson has helped usher in fundamental improvements in the way water quality and habitat protection is addressed throughout North America. "I know of no one more committed to the public life, community service, and mission and values of UVM," said Mary Watzin, dean of the Rubenstein School.

ACADEMIC REGALIA

The Academic Costume worn today in U.S. colleges and universities is a survivor of the Middle Ages. The University of Vermont was among the first in this country to experiment with the use of academic gowns, requiring their wearing at the graduation of 1806. The experiment was not repeated until mid-century when UVM and other colleges began wholeheartedly to use the medieval scholar's clothing for ceremonial occasions.

The code regulating academic costume is administered by an intercollegiate commission that establishes uniform standards. BACHELORS' gowns have closed fronts and long, pointed sleeves. MASTERS' gowns may be worn open or closed and have oblong sleeves open at the wrist, the lower portion hanging down with an arc near the bottom. DOCTORS' gowns may be open or closed and have velvet facings and three velvet bars on the round, open sleeves. The facings and bars may be of black or of the official colors of the wearer's department of learning.

Hoods are usually black. All are lined in silk in the academic color or colors of the institution conferring the degree, with a chevron for additional colors. A University of Vermont hood is lined with green, with a gold chevron, the official school colors. The color of the hood border indicates the degree earned.

The Black Mortarboard is worn for all degrees. Only Doctors' caps may be made of velvet and only Doctors or Presidents of institutions may wear a gold tassel on the cap.

The Class of 1927 Memorial Mace is carried by the University Marshal at formal university occasions and is displayed on the platform during these ceremonies.

The Mace, a gift from the Class of 1927, is forty-seven inches long, cast bronze, plated in silver, with a black ebony handle. The sculpture on one of the four sides depicts the center section of Old Mill with Mt. Mansfield in the background, symbolizing the founding of the University. Other sides display three students reaching upwards to a lamp, symbolic of learning; the Ira Allen Chapel, symbolizing spiritual guidance; and a group of four persons, symbolizing friendship. It is crowned by the seal of the University.

The Mace was designed and the model sculpted by Richard Simpson, son of Carl G. and Doris Griffith Simpson, both members of the Class of 1927.

The University Seal or Medallion was adopted in 1807 and used until 1871 when it was replaced by a round seal incorporating the name of the College of Agriculture. In 1975 the Board of Trustees voted to restore the original seal to official use, modified to incorporate the Latin name of the College of Agriculture.

The motto on the seal is from Horace, Epistles 1.2.36. Literally, it means "For virtuous studies and matters." In the allusion to Horace's poem it reflects UVM's continuing belief in the utility and practicality of all liberal studies.
